LIFE OF DISTRICT GREATLY EXTENDED

The establishment of new production records in the Tonopah district shows that the life of the camp is expanding. During the month of May the flow of bullion from the four big mills of the camp—Tonopah Belmont, West End, Tonopah Extension and Tonopah Mining—amounted to $700,239, with the last half of May being estimated for the Tonopah Mining, the figures being based upon the amount of bullion shipped for the first half of the month.

The West End Consolidated established a new record during the last half of May, with an output of $104,000, or an increase of $18,412 over that of the preceding 15 days. The Tonopah Belmont Development company, the management of which is continuously furnishing new surprises, produced $140,022 as against $125,025 for the preceding period. Tonopah Extension also demonstrated that a wonderful area of productivity is in store for the future, by increasing the output from $63,000 to $73,000.

The summer season is now on us and as a natural consequence the production should be augmented in a most material way. Increased shipments will be flowing into the various bins of the custom milling plants of Tonopah from various outside sections, not to mention the increased tonnage that will naturally result at big mines in Tonopah. It will not only be the matter of a short time until the sweeps plant at the Tonopah Belmont will be treating a heavy tonnage, and the earnings will naturally be increased in no small way.

Tonopah and the surrounding districts of Nye county have a promising future. The physical life of the various mines promises to be extended over a long period. This can be attributed largely to the fact that large and rich orebodies are being found at depth at the holdings of the Tonopah Extension Mining company, and the further fact that exploration on a large scale is being carried forward by the other three large operating companies.

BUY GOODS AT HOME AND MONEY STAYS HERE

Abraham Lincoln made the observation that if we bought goods abroad we had the goods and the foreigner had our money; but if we bought goods at home we had both the goods and the money. This compresses the entire protective tariff into one sentence.

The sale in this country of every foreign made article the like of which is being made or could be made here means the sale of one less American made article. The total loss of sales of American made articles because of the importation and sale of foreign made goods means that much less production in American factories. Decreased production in American factories means but one thing, the laying off of working men. The increase of idleness in this country due to this policy means but one thing, hard times for everyone. The American working man is the biggest and the best customer of the American farmer. The American working man is the biggest and best customer of American made goods. He's America's leading consumer.

The American farmer has been passing through two years of experience which proves he cannot prosper when American working men are idle. Internationalists and free traders attempt to persuade the farmer that his prosperity is dependent on foreign markets. The proposition is ridiculous. The American farmer sold more of his crops abroad in 1921 than in any previous year in the history of the United States, yet he knows full well that the prices he received for his crops in 1921 were the lowest in the history of American agriculture. This effectively disposes of the claim that foreign markets make the American farmer prosperous.

The plain truth is the American farmer got less for his farm products in 1921 than ever before in the history of this country because of the very simple fact that more American working men were walking the streets in 1921 without money to buy food products than ever before in the history of this country. Those who would drive the American working man into idleness are the worst enemies not only of the American working man but of the American farmer.

The American working man is being driven into idleness today by the importing interests which are flooding the United States with goods they have purchased abroad at absurdly low prices. Their flooding the United States has not benefited the consumer for they are charging the consumer all the way from 1000 to 5400 per cent profit on these goods imported from Europe and Asia and they are closing American factories which make like goods. They are keeping hundreds of thousands of working men out of employment.

Their pretensions that they are against the enactment of a protective tariff because they are friends of the consumer is not benefitted by any policy which throws him out of work, for it must be kept in mind that the American consumer is also the American producer. The American consumer, whose buying power is measured by his pay envelope which he obtains at the factory, is not benefitted by any policy which stops his pay envelope. If he is destroyed as a producer he is also destroyed as a consumer. The American farmer is not benefitted by any policy which destroys the pay envelope of the American working man.

The whole issue and the sole issue involved in the present tariff controversy is whether or not this nation is going to adopt an economic policy that will build up American industries which give employment to millions of men and women who in turn buy the products of American farms, sustain American public utilities, build up and develop American communities or is this nation going to adopt an economic policy which benefits only a few thousand importing interests that are willing to betray and ruin American industry, American labor and American agriculture because by so doing they reap for themselves enormous profits.

It is this comparatively small clique of importing interests closely organized and tremendously financed that is the backbone of the present fight against the enactment of a protective tariff. It is furnishing the funds and conducting the nation-wide campaign of propaganda against protective tariff legislation. The American people must make a decision between productive factories and prosperous working men on the one hand and profiteering importing interests in league with foreign bankers and foreign industries on the other hand.

PARCEL POST IS LOSING MONEY

The question of parcel post rates is engaging the serious attention of the post office department as well as that of the budget bureau. There is no doubt at present but that the parcel post division of the postal service is operating at a tremendous deficit. It could not be otherwise. Parcel post service was instituted January 1, 1913, and rates then fixed are still operative. At that time the parcel post business comprised less than 5 per cent of all mail handled; now it comprises more than 60 per cent. This tremendous increase in quantity has pushed up the amount of money paid to railroads for hauling the mails; it has necessitated a tremendous increase in personnel of the post office department and an even greater proportionate increase in equipment necessary for the local delivery of parcel post. Due to the increase in parcel post business the post office department is able to trace directly an increase of $300,000,000 in its annual budget.

In order to wipe out the deficit of the parcel post division there must be either a readjustment of rates affecting everyone or a flat service charge on each parcel handled regardless of zone or weight. In addition to these contemplated readjustments there is need for some revision of the parcel post system that will compel those who use it to pay for its use in proportion to the service they require from it.

With the exception of the fact that the infield is weak and the outfield crippled and it hasn't any pitchers, the democratic congressional team looks like a strong contender for the November pennant.
